Library Staff Member Discovers Musical Time Capsule

George Kipper, technician in the Recorded Sound Section, was walking through the stacks one day when he spotted an unusual item: a film can. His curiosity rose when he read the inscription on the outside:

"This sealed receptacle contains recordings of American music made in 1938 by Andre Kostelanetz, orchestra conductor, not to be opened or played until 1988."

"I was concerned that there might be nitrate stock inside, so I opened it to have a look," he explained.

Inside he found three recorded disks and a letter marked "Greeting to the People of these United States of America in the year 1988."

The letter was signed by the famous conductor and was dated March 3, 1938. In it, he ventured a prediction as to what music

Time Capsule (Cont. from p. 113) would stand the test of time and still be popular 50 years hence. His pronouncement was on the mark: George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and Ferde Grofé's "Grand Canyon Suite."

The disks contained recordings of these two selections, as conducted by Kostelanetz himself.

Fearing that the progress of technology might outstrip his chosen form of preservation, Andre Kostelanetz also enclosed two record needles.

Mr. Kipper realized he had a time capsule on his hands and filed away his find in the back of his mind. Later, near the 50th anniversary of the date of the letter, it was brought to the attention of the Library's Information Office.

The news media reacted with enthusiasm, with stories published in the Washington Post and N.Y. Times, and aired on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered" program.

At the time of his death, the Washington Post characterized Mr. Kostelanetz "as more of a popularizer than a master of music." By leaving a time capsule behind, his role in this regard continued even after his death.

The Library of Congress Information Bulletin is issued weekly by the Information Office of the Library of Congress and distributed free of charge to publicly supported libraries and research institutions, academic libraries, learned societies, and allied organizations in the United States.

Comparable institutions and organizations in other countries may arrange to receive the Bulletin on an exchange basis by applying in writing to the Library's Exchange and Gift Division. All other correspondence should be addressed to the LC Information Bulletin, Information Office, Library of Congress, Washington, DC 20540.

Ronald A. Morse Is New Development Officer

Ronald A. Morse

Librarian of Congress James H. Billington has announced the appointment of Ronald A. Morse to the new post of development officer. Mr. Morse, who will report to The Librarian, is joining the Library staff on March 28.

Ronald Morse comes to the Library from the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, where he has served both as assistant director for development and as secretary of the Asia Program. In the former capacity, he directed the Wilson Center's endowment strategy and coordinated all private and Federal long- and short-term fundraising activities. He also served as executive director of the Wilson Council, the center's private sector advisory body made up of corporate and foundation executives. He supervised the Wilson Center's staff on fundraising matters and directed a $3 million endowment campaign for the Wilson Center. He also raised $1.2 million in endowment funds for the Asia Program.

Mr. Morse grew up in the New York area and served in the U.S. Air Force. In 1964, he received a bachelor's degree from the University of California, Berkeley, from which he also earned a master's degree in 1967. He has a Ph.D. from Princeton University (1974). His fields of concentration were economics and history, primarily Asian studies.

Before joining the Wilson Center in 1981, Mr. Morse worked on the energy policies of the major energy-importing nations at the U.S. Department of Energy. At the Department of State (1977–80), he analyzed Northeast Asian domestic politics and foreign policy. While with the Department of Defense (1974–77), he directed a project team on economic and scientific affairs.

He is a member of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives, served as president of the Mid-Atlantic Association of Asian Studies (1982–83), and has been an advisor to the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies. He is a founding member of the U.S. National Committee for Pacific Economic Cooperation. Mr. Morse has edited more than a dozen books on Asian cultural, economic, and political issues. His most recent article, "Japan's Drive to Preeminence," was published in this winter's (1987–88) issue of Foreign Policy.

Mr. Morse lives in Annapolis, Md., with his wife, Jacqueline, and his 15-year-old son, Randy.

Washington Hosts Institute on Federal Library Resources

The sixteenth annual Institute on Federal Library Resources, sponsored by the School of Library and Information Science of the Catholic University of America, will be held this summer in Washington, D.C., on August 1–12.

Frank Kurt Cylke, the academic director, announced that the curriculum will: identify the role of Federal libraries, information centers, and databases in the Federal library community; discuss the implication of the posture of the National Commission on Libraries and Information

Science relating to Federal libraries; identify resources, publications, and specialized services provided by Federal libraries; identify resources available through major government clearinghouses, such as the National Technical Information Service (NTIS), the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC), and the Defense Technical Information Center (DTIC); compare the in-operation or the in-process development of the major Federal library and information services; discuss the implications for libraries of telecommunications satellites; and identify and articulate the functions performed by the Federal Library and Information Center Committee (FLICC).

Participants will be addressed by 25 directors of Federal information programs and representatives of several membership associations.

Information regarding the institute may be obtained by contacting the School of Library and Information Science, The Catholic University of America, Washington, DC 20064.

Library of Congress Information Bulletin Goes Electronic in Pilot Project

The Information Office of the Library of Congress with the cooperation of the Federal Library and Information Center Committee (FLICC) has initiated a pilot project to offer to Federal libraries selected articles from the Library of Congress Information Bulletin online.

Articles from the Information Bulletin, beginning with the March 28 issue, will be offered on ALIX (Automated Library Information Exchange), the electronic bulletin board used by Federal libraries that are members of FEDLINK, a nationwide Federal library network that provides access to more than 60 online databases; OCLC, RLIN, and WLN; book ordering and serials subscription services; and numerous other library services.

The new service will make it possible for any of FEDLINK's 1,400 members to have immediate access to articles from the LC Information Bulletin with information of national significance and professional importance to the library community.

For more information regarding the electronic bulletin board and FEDLINK services, Federal libraries should call (202) 287-6454.

Colloquium Is Held in Albany, N.Y., On Advanced Concepts in Computing

Henriette D. Avram, assistant librarian for processing services, attended a colloquium, "Advanced Concepts in Computing," at the New York State Library in Albany, N.Y., on February 2. Mrs. Avram and others from the library, information, and scholarly communities attended the colloquium as members of a blue ribbon advisory panel appointed by the New York State Library and the Nelson A. Rockefeller Institute of Government.

The topics and presenters of papers at the colloquium were: "Advanced User Interfaces," Hamed Ellozy, International Business Machines (IBM); "Distributed Systems and Communications"; Yechian Yemini, Columbia University; and "Current Topics in Artificial Intelligence," Daniel Sabbah, IBM. Abraham Peled, IBM, introduced the theme by briefly addressing some of the current and future advances in computing technology. IBM sponsored the program and panel working session.

This colloquium was the second of

Juilliard Quartet To Perform in April

The Juilliard String Quartet—resident artists at the Library of Congress—will perform seven concerts in the Coolidge Auditorium during the month of April.

The first concert, on Friday evening, April 8, at 8 p.m., will feature the Sextets in B-flat major, Op. 18, and G major, Op. 36, by Johannes Brahms. For this performance violinists Robert Mann and Joel Smirnoff, violist Samuel Rhodes, and cellist Joel Krosnick will be joined by violist Walter Trampler and cellist Ralph Kirshbaum. The concert is free to the public, with no tickets required.

Founded in 1946, the Juilliard String Quartet is the quartet-in-residence at the Juilliard School of Music and the Library of Congress (since 1962). The quartet is noted for its efforts on behalf of contemporary music, particularly by American composers; its performances of nearly 400 works have included more than 150 pieces by 20th-century composers. The Juilliard Quartet was the first (1948) to play the complete cycle of Bartók string quartets in the United States. In 1961 it was the first American string quartet to visit the Soviet Union, and it has returned on numerous occasions.The quartet tours throughout the United States and in Europe, Australia, New Zealand, the Near and Far East, and South America. In 1985 the Juilliard Quartet received a Grammy Award; in 1986 it was entered into the National Academy for Recording Arts and Sciences Hall of Fame.

The Friday-evening concerts at the Library of Congress will be broadcast live in the Washington, D.C., area over radio station WGMS (570 AM and 103.5 FM). They will be distributed to stations in other cities by American Public Radio, under the auspices of the Katie and Walter Louchheim Fund.

Among the other works to be performed by the Juilliard Quartet in April are two pieces commissioned by the Library of Congress—Ulysses S. Kay's Five Portraits, for violin and piano (1972, the McKim Fund) and Milton Babbitt's Quartet No. 4 (1970, the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation). Other program details are listed below:

Friday, April 8, at 8 p.m., with violist William Trampler and cellist Ralph Kirshbaum:

Brahms—Sextet in B-flat major, Op. 18; Brahms—Sextet in G major, Op. 36

Friday and Saturday, April 15–16, at 8 p.m. (Please note: Saturday)

Stravinsky—Three Pieces for String Quartet (1914); Franck—Quartet in D major (ca. 1889); Webern—Six Bagatelles, Op. 9; Mozart—Quartet in F major, K. 590

Thursday and Friday, April 21–22, at 8 p.m., with pianist Stephen Hough (Sponsored by the McKim Fund):

Beethoven—Quartet in F minor, Op. 95; Ulysses S. Kay—Five Portraits, for violin and piano (1972); Dvořák—Quintet in A major, Op. 81

Thursday and Friday, April 28–29, at 8 p.m.:

Beethoven—Quartet in B-flat major, Op. 18, No. 6; Babbitt—Quartet No. 4 (1970); Beethoven—Quartet in E-flat major, Op. 127

Institute on the general topic of technology and the research environment of the future. The first was titled "Frontiers in Materials Science" and the third will cover the "Information Infrastructure of the Future." The three colloquiums were organized to provide fruitful background information for the blue ribbon advisory committee to consider in the development of its report and recommendations to the state government of New York on information technology changes applicable to the research community.

In the autumn of 1987, Commissioner Thomas Sobol of the New York State Department of Education and Acting Chancellor Jerome Komisar of the State University of New York initiated a challenge designed to provoke forecasts of the effect of near-term changes in the information technology on research and development in the state of New York. The advisory panel expects to complete its report to Commissioner Sobol and Acting Chancellor Komisar by the summer of 1988.

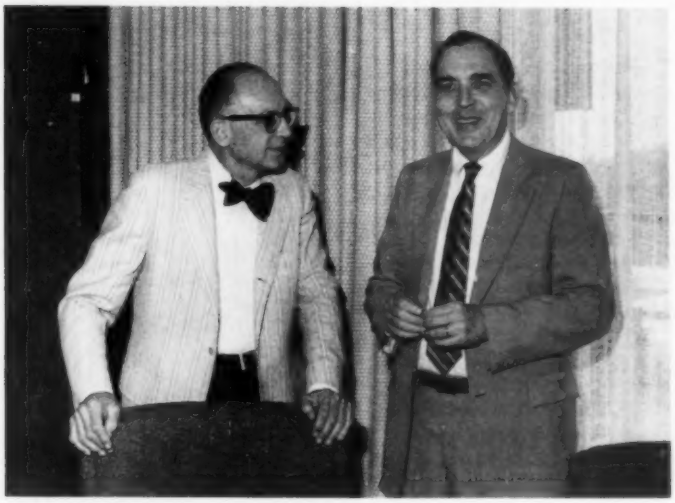
John C. Broderick Retires as Assistant Librarian For Research Services at the Library of Congress



John C. Broderick, right, and Librarian of Congress Emeritus Daniel J. Boorstin on the occasion of Dr. Broderick's receiving his 20-year Federal Service Award in 1982.

John C. Broderick, the assistant librarian for research services at the Library of Congress since January 1979, will retire from the Library April 1. He has been a member of the Library staff since 1964.

In the nine years that Dr. Broderick headed the Research Services Department, the Library has enriched its collections with many important acquisitions, initiated projects to manage and preserve the collections, and expanded its concert and literary programs. These accomplishments have been achieved despite limited budgets and disruptions created by the relocation of six divisions to the James Madison Memorial Building and the shifting of numerous other divisions and offices in connection with the restoration and renovation of the Thomas Jefferson and John Adams buildings.

Acquisitions of major significance during Dr. Broderick's direction of the department have included the transfer to the Library of the Lessing J. Rosenwald Collection of illustrated books dating to the 15th century, the two largest printed globes engraved in the 17th century by cartographer Father Vincenzo Coronelli, and a collection of early television programs produced by the National Broadcasting Corporation. The Library also has received grants from the IBM Corporation, the Cafritz Foundation, the National Geographic Society, and other benefactors to service and exhibit the special collections. Department activities to preserve the collections and to improve access to them have included participation in a mass deacidification program, the institution of a correspondence referral system linking the nation's reference librarians, the implementation of an electronic loan system, and the use of automation for cataloging items in the special collections and for preparing bibliographies.

Library institutions established while Dr. Broderick headed the Department of Research Services have included the Mary Pickford Theater, the Performing Arts Library, and a film laboratory in Dayton, Ohio. The Consultant in Poetry title was changed to Poet Laureate Consultant in Poetry by an act of Congress. The first to hold the title was Robert Penn Warren in 1986–87 followed by Richard Wilbur, who was appointed in April 1987.

Dr. Broderick has personally managed the Library's literary programs for the past 14 years—a period highlighted by major events, such as the reunions of Poetry Consultants in 1978 and 1987, the George Orwell Conference in 1984, and the first international Wheatland Conference on Literature in 1987, as well as by nearly 200 poetry readings and other programs.

Dr. Broderick was chief of the Manuscript Division from 1975 to 1979 and assistant chief from 1965 to 1975. During those years, the number and variety of the Library's manuscript holdings increased significantly. Dr. Broderick was responsible for negotiations leading to the acquisition of the papers and some manuscripts of Goodman Ace, John Barth, Truman Capote, Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy, Marcia Davenport, James A. Farley, Janet Flanner, B. W. Huebsch, Bernard Malamud, Dr. Peter Marshall, Bill Mauldin, Reinhold Niebuhr, J. Robert Oppenheimer, A. Philip Randolph, Lawrence Spivak, William Styron, John Updike, Margaret Webster, and others, and the records of the Southern Regional Office of the National Urban League.

Dr. Broderick served as an adjunct professor of English and consultant in bibliography at the George Washington University in Washington, D.C., from 1964 to 1984. He previously taught English and American literature at the University of North Carolina (1949–52, 1968), the University of Texas (1952–57), the University of Virginia (1959), and Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C. (1957–64). A specialist in 19th-century American literature, Dr. Broderick has published articles and studies of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry D. Thoreau, and Walt Whitman, among others. He is a member of the Editorial Board of The Writings of Henry D. Thoreau (Princeton University Press), and he is the general editor of Thoreau's multivolume Journal.

Dr. Broderick has been actively involved with several associations, including the Modern Language Association, the Society of American Archivists, and the American Antiquarian Society. He has represented the Library of Congress on the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Commission, the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, and the Christopher Columbus Quincentenary Jubilee Commission. He was also a member of the Advisory Board to the U.S. Senate Historical Office.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., Dr. Broderick earned his undergraduate degree from Southwestern College in Memphis and his master's degree and his doctorate from the University of North Carolina. In 1945-46 he studied Japanese language and culture in the U.S. Army Language Program at Yale University.

Dr. and Mrs. Broderick are residents of Montgomery County, Md. Post-retirement activities for Dr. Broderick will include various scholarly and editorial projects and "plenty of golf."

Georgette M. Dorn Earns 25-year Federal Service Award

Georgette M. Dorn interviews and records Ruben Bareiro-Saguier, a Paraguayan poet and critic who writes in Spanish and Guarani, for the Library's Archive of Hispanic Literature. A teacher this semester at the University of Maryland, he will speak at the Library at noon May 4 in one of a series of luncheon seminars sponsored by the Hispanic Division.

Georgette Magassy Dorn—specialist in Hispanic culture, head of the Hispanic Reading Room, and curator of the Archive of Hispanic Literature on Tape—was presented a 25-year Federal Service Award pin on January 28 by John C. Broderick, assistant librarian for research services.

Born in Budapest, Hungary, Dr. Dorn lived in Germany and the Netherlands as well as in Spain and Argentina. She holds a bachelor's degree from Creighton University, Omaha, Neb. (1959); a master's degree in history from Boston College (1961); and a doctorate in Latin American history from Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. (1981). She began her Federal service at the Library of Congress in 1962 as a Hungarian and German cataloger in the Descriptive Cataloging Division; she transferred to the Hispanic Division in 1964 as an area librarian. She was promoted to her present position in 1970. She received an outstanding performance rating in 1980 and an incentive award in 1984.

Dr. Dorn brings to her position a broad understanding of the history and culture of Spanish America and knowledge of five foreign languages. She is the author of a scholarly translation of manuscripts, several bibliographies, articles on Latin America, and The Archive of Hispanic Literature on Tape (1974). She has recorded 362 Latin American, Caribbean, Iberian, and Chicano writers—including six Nobel laureates—for the Archive of Hispanic Literature on Tape at the Library. Dr. Dorn maintains contact with a number of prominent contemporary writers who assist the Library in developing its collections and in planning cultural programs.

In addition to serving as president of the Inter-American Council of Washington in 1975–76, she was a member of the executive council of the Latin American Studies Association. She serves on the executive council of the American Catholic Historical Association. Dr. Dorn is a member of the editorial boards of three journals: The Americas; A Quarterly Review of Inter-American Cultural History, Revista de la Historia de America (Pan-American Institute of Geography and History), and Letras de Buenos Aires. She is a member of three standing committees of the Conference on Latin American History, including the Committee on International Relations. She has presented papers at numerous international congresses and lectured in several Latin American countries as well as in Spain, France, and Hungary. Dr. Dorn has been teaching a colloquium, "Women in Latin American History," and a course on the Southern Cone Countries of Latin America at Georgetown University during alternating semesters since 1982. She also serves as the chair of the archives committee of Holy Trinity Church in Washington.

Dr. Dorn and her husband, Paul A. Dorn, Jr., M.D., reside in Chevy Chase, Md. They have a married daughter, two daughters in college, and a son in high school who is a soccer and lacrosse player. The family enjoys skiing and the theater.
